Lehigh Recognized for Exceptional Blood Donations

Once again Lehigh Cement Company's Allentown location has been honored for active participation in blood donation for the region's hospital patients. Lehigh recently received the Gold Award for 2006 at the Miller-Keystone Blood Center's annual recognition dinner. In 2006, Lehigh—from its employees, employee spouses and retirees—donated 98 units of blood.

In fact, visitors to the board room at Allentown headquarters can find on display the plaques and trophies honoring Lehigh's steady support of the blood center since 2000. The quantity and frequency of blood donations is made possible by the dedicated coordination of Lisa Trence, Administrative Assistant, HTC. She organizes an in-house blood drive at the building five times a year.

The donors give voluntarily, with no expectation of a reward. But no one's complaining about the ten minutes of mandatory canteen time after their appointment, where they are offered cookies and other refreshments to make sure they are fortified for going back to work.
